Our speaker:

Michaela Daphne is an Australian writer who has penned several short films, TV scripts, stage plays, and fiction stories, authored sections in the books 'Learning to Love' and 'The Word Made Flesh', and edited 'Up The Beaten Track'. She's spent the last ten years volunteering and working with high schoolers and young adults in Australia and Singapore and her passion lies specifically with helping to equip young women for relationships. 'Purlieu' is her first novel and is inspired by personal experiences of her own life and the lived stories of the young women she's encountered. Michaela is determined to change the culture of toxic relationships in Australia and help high schoolers and young adults to discover real love.
